Indian-origin tech millionaire found dead after being kidnapped from home in US

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Washington, October 3

TUSHARATRE, AN Indian-origin tech millionaire, was found dead in his girlfriend's car hours after the owner of a digital marketing company in the US was allegedly kidnapped from his posh California home, according to media reports.

Atre, 50, owner of AtreNet

Atre, a web design company that caters to Silicon Valley corporate businesses, was inside his home Tuesday morning when several other people when multiple suspects broke into his house and abducted him in his girlfriend's white BMW, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Hours after authorities began searching for Atre, police reported finding a BMW stolen from his house and a body near the vehicle.

The investigation took officials to a property in a mountainous, heavily wooded area where they found the white BMW and Atre's body.

Investigators are tracking multiple suspects in connection with the kidnapping of Atre.

"We are looking into all aspects of his life," said Sgt Brian Cleveland, a spokesman for the Sheriff's Office. "All doors are open."

Investigators don't know the suspects' relationship with Atre. But authorities "have reason to believe the motive was robbery," according to the Sheriff's Office's Facebook post.

According to his social media profiles, Atre was an avid surfer. His Instagram profile depicts an adventurous, nature-filled life. His Twitter profile reads: "Surfer. Mushroom forager. Always on the go."

On Wednesday afternoon, the office confirmed the body found was identified as Atre. "We have reason to believe the motive was robbery," a sheriff's office statement on Facebook said.

Police are looking for at least two people in connection with the case, the local station KTVU reported on Tuesday.

Fast-track road construction: Gadkari to NHAI officials

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, October 3

ASSERTING THAT DELAYED decisions are "totally unacceptable", Union minister Nitin Gadkari on Thursday urged NHAI officials to fast-track highways construction through faster decision making.

Road transport, highways and MSME minister Gadkari was addressing regional officers of the National Highways Authority of India (NHA) through video conferencing.

Re-emphasising Prime Minister Narendra Modi's stress on the need for fast growth of infrastructure, Gadkari said that there is an urgent need to develop a positive, transparent, corruption free working system with time bound decision making, the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways said in a statement.

"Delayed decisions are totally unacceptable as they lead to colossal loss of time and resources and add to the woes of people," the minister told officials.

Directing regional officers to be proactive in coordinating with district officials to fast track land acquisition and other such issues, he urged officials to speed up the implementation of projects through faster decision making and stricter monitoring.

Gadkari, along with the Minister of State for Road Transport and Highways V K Singh, held a day-long review of the progress of national highways projects at the NHAI headquarters here today.

He also underlined the need to bring down construction costs through new technology and innovative means.

He said there is enough availability of funds for construction of national highways through various sources including long-term funding from banks.

Gadkari also stressed upon the need for performance audit and said that officials must ensure that the award and construction targets for the year are fully met.
